and the state's unemployment insurance system. Wendy's major career highlights include working on reforms to Michigan's workers' compensation and unemployment insurance systems in 2011, the passage of Michigan's right-to-work law in 2012, and lobbying for COVID-19 support and employer liability protections in 2020 and 2021. Wendy has worked in and around Lansing's policy and political circles for more than two decades. Before joining the Michigan Chamber in 2004, Wendy served as a policy adviser for the House of Representatives focused on health insurance, financial services and education issues. She previously held other policy-related positions in the Michigan House and Senate.
